

Colour of the Year

In case you missed it

Greenery is the colour of 2017

Pantone made the announcement in December and the colour has already been spotted on runways around the world.

The minty green was selected because it's symbolic of new beginnings. "Greenery symbolizes the reconnection we seek with nature, one another and a larger purpose," explains Beatrice Wiseman, executive director of the Pantone Colour Institute. Pantone has historically been pretty spot on in its colour predictions when it comes to fashion and design trends. Do you remember seeing a lot of Rose Quartz and Serenity last year? Pantone predicted those too.
